

I'm not robot

Continue

Daily telegraph nrl reporters

Daniela AbbracciaventoLocal sports reporterDaniela is a local sports journalist in Adelaide covering everything from Australian rules football, netball and football to a bit of grassroots athletics, swimming and tennis news. She has been a News Corp journalist for seven years and covered AFLW grand finals, sanfl and SANFLW flag decisions, and an international tennis event in Adelaide. Email Daniela AbbraxiaventoDavid AlexanderNews editorDavid Alexander specialises in planning and reporting development for News Corp on Brisbane's north side. He also writes about judgment, crime, council and politics. Previously editor of Sunraysia Daily in Mildura.Joe is a Daily and Sunday Telegraph reporter who has been working with News Corp since March 2019. He currently works as an afternoon news reporter for The Daily Telegraph website. Joe has a passion for hard news, environmental affairs, health care and LGBTQI+ issues. Alexia has been working with News Corp since July 2017, starting her career as a reporter for The Western Star, Western Times and Balonne Beacon. She moved to the Chronicle in August 2018 to cover the general news. Prior to that, she studied journalism and biomedical science at the University of Queensland, working part-time as a photographer. Rebecca BakerSenior writer/Sunday MailRebecca Baker is a senior writer at the Sunday Mail in Adelaide, where her focus is on families and young people, issues relevant to you and trends affecting your daily life. As a storyteller, she is passionate about sharing and celebrating the extraordinary efforts and successes of ordinary moms, dads, children, educators, sports coaches, health workers and others. Rebecca covered almost all rounds in newsrooms during her career, covering several states and platforms from print to broadcast, digital and now back to print. It is our real-life human stories that warm the heart she loves to tell the most. Kate BanvilleDefens reporter Cate Banville is a news reporter in the Townsville Bulletin covering defense, education and health care. She draws on her personal experience as a 7-year Army veteran to report issues relevant to the defense community. Kate was awarded the 2018 Ossie Awards for Investigative Journalism for abc's 7.30 report and ongoing coverage of the combat veterans group fighting the Department of the Interior to have their Afghan interpreters move to Australia on humanitarian grounds. The case has since been overturned by a Federal Court decision. She previously worked for WIN News in Townsville and ABC Gold Coast, where she started out as an intern. Kate is the wife and mother of two little boys. Elise Barr is a local digital reporter for st George Shire Standard specialising in local crime and the courts. She writes local and state news for the Daily Telegraph and is a guest contributor to Sky News Australia and RendezView.Townsville Bulletin reporter Cameron Bates is award-winning photojournalist in Ingham. In a career spanning more than two decades, he covered national, state and local politics, court, crime, terrorism, natural disasters, sports and business in New Zealand, Indonesia and Australia. Adella Beaini is a journalist for The Daily Telegraph, with an interest in veterans, mental health and investigative projects. Her last job was on the Save Our Heroes campaign, which resulted in Prime Minister Scott Morrison announcing an independent commission of inquiry into veteran suicides. Nicola BellBusiness editor Nicola Bell is business editor for The Weekly Times. He has more than 10 years of experience as an agribusiness and agriculture journalist and has worked for The Weekly Times since 2012. Nicola was also co-host of The Ag Show, which airs on Sky News Business in 2018. It has experience covering many agribusiness issues, including droughts, floods, commodity prices, water reform, politics, trade and livestock. Matthew Bennseditor-on-LargeMatthew Benns is editor at large in The Daily Telegraph. He is a career journalist from Fleet Street to Sydney and has covered stories around the world tracking tigers in the Russian Far East to find elvis Presley's first girlfriend in Biloxi, Mississippi. Natasha BitAssociate EditorNatasha Bit is a much award-winning journalist with a focus on free speech, education, social affairs, aged, health care, immigration, industrial relations and consumer law. She won the Oclely Award, Australia's most prestigious journalism award and the Queensland Clarion Award for feature writing. Natasha was also a finalist for Graham Perkin's Australian of the Year Award and sir Keith Murdoch's Award for Excellence in Journalism. Her reporting on education received the NSW Professional Teachers' Council Media Award and the Australian Board of Education Leaders. Her agenda of highlighting elderly care abuse won the Summer People Speak Out award. Natasha worked in London and Italy for An Australian newspaper and News Corp Australia. She is a member of the Canberra Press Gallery and Media, Entertainment and Arts Alliance. Contact her via email natasha.bit@news.com.auSarah BlakeUS Bureau ChiefAward winning journalist Sarah Blake is head of the US Bureau for News Corp Australia, leading our 2020 election coverage. It covered stories ranging from the Asian tsunami to the Australian elections, investigations, features and two Olympics. Sarah won the News Awards for Scoop of the Year and Outstanding News Reporter, as well as the Kennedy Award for Outstanding Online Video. With a proven track record of driving the news cycle, Andrew Bolt directs discussions, encourages debate and offers his perspective on national affairs. A leading journalist and commentator, Andrew's columns are published in the Herald Sun, Daily Telegraph and Advertiser. He writes Australia's most read political blog and hosts bolt report on SkyNews every week night. Tom Boswell sports editor in the Gold Coast Bulletin. Tom has spent decades working in sports journalism, covering virtually every sport from grassroots straight to the elite, shifting his focus to AFL and horse racing in recent years and atsaking himself as one of the premier reporters of both in Queensland. Tom still continues to write breaking and hard-hitting stories along with deeper parts that provide a unique insight into the athletes and issues they face. Tony Ibrahim has decades of experience as a journalist, investigative reporter and editor. He won the Kennedy Award for investigating Takata airbags, leading to the recall of 4 million vehicles across Australia. Over the past few years, he has been reporting on people important to Sydney's southwest.Phil Brown is a journalist and author who has written for various national and international publications, including literary magazines such as Meanjin and Griffith Review . He has written a number of books, including two collections of poetry. His latest book is The Kowloon Kid: A Hong Kong Childhood, published by Transit Lounge in 2019. He has been covering art in Australia in the mainstream media for nearly four decades and is now arts editor at The Courier-Mail in Brisbane. Trudy Brown is a reporter for the Townsville Bulletin, dedicated to covering all aspects of news in the Charters Towers region. She worked in rural NSW and Sydney but spent most of her career at Charters Towers, where as editor she won the Queensland Country Press Award for best newspaper in 2018 and was a two-time Pampa finalist; in 2016 and 2018, 2018. She is one of the longest-serving editors of the historic Northern Miner newspaper and former editor-in-chief of the non-daily News Corp newspapers in North and Far North Queensland.Andrea McCullag is a reporter for Mosman Daily and highlights the general news alongside crime and development. He has two decades of experience in journalism both in Australia and abroad. Shayla BullochCrime correspondentSale Bulloch is a Journalist for the Townsville Bulletin who specialises in crime and forensic reports. Shilya began her career at The Morning Bulletin in Rockhampton in 2017 before heading to the Sunshine Coast Daily. Shala worked mainly in regional newsrooms covering crime, police issues and forensic reporting. Emily Burley is a Newcastle reporter covering general news, courts and crime for The Newcastle News and The Daily Telegraph. Prior to joining The Daily Telegraph, Emily was head of bureau at Sky News Australia.Phillippa ButtSunday Territorian EditorPhillippa Butt is a Sunday editor at Territorian at NT News. She has worked for the newspaper for a number of years and held positions including Civic Reporter, weekend feature editor and premium content editor, and is a regular columnist at NT News Saturday. She was recently named Young Journalist of the Year of the North 2019 for her body of work. Outside the She loves going out and going through all the territory has to offer - except for the build-up when she likes to watch Netflix in her air-conditioned apartment. Contact her with story ideas or a column on philippa.butt@news.com.auClarissa ByeSenior ReporterClarissa Bye is a senior Daily Telegraph journalist who breaks the agenda and investigative yarn. She has several decades of experience covering both federal and public policy, features, social affairs, education and medical rounds. She was the federal parliament's youngest correspondent for The Sun Herald, where she was shortlisted for walkley.Holly ByrnesNational TV EditorHolly Byrnes is national television editor, former confidential Sydney editor and fashion columnist for The Daily Telegraph. Holly has been at the helm of the national TV guide for four years, sharing exclusive A-list interviews and guiding viewers through the best weekly in free-to-air, streaming and signature TV. He has more than 20 years of experience in journalism. Denise Cahillhead of NewsDenise Cahill is the head of NT News news, managing a team of 10 reporters and two photographers in Darwin and Alice Springs. Denise worked in the media for 18 years, starting with Community News in Perth, where she was editor of several weekly newspapers, including Western Suburbs Weekly.Dave CairnsBusiness editorDave Cairns is a business editor at the Geelong Advertiser. A 20-year veteran of the Geelong Advertiser newspaper, he was previously a digital editor and night editor of the Geelong Advertiser, and Geelong News editor.Anna CaldwellState Political EditorAnna Caldwell is the state political editor of The Daily Telegraph, who leads our team on Macquarie Street. She joined The Daily Telegraph in February 2017 after two years as a News Corp correspondent in the US based in New York. The NSA covered federal politics at the Canberra Press Gallery for two years during the Gillard/Rudd era. She is a former chief of staff at the Brisbane Courier-Mail.Lynn CameronContent producer Lynn Cameron is a content producer for The Advertiser/Sunday Mail, working in various commercial titles including regular rises of FutureADL, Independent Lifestyle and PosAbility magazines, as well as single projects for clients including SACOME, Cancer Council, RDFS and many others. James CampbellInvestient editor James Campbell is the Herald Sun's national political editor. he was previously public policy editor and opinion editor of the Herald Sun and The Sunday Herald Sun. Starting with the Sunday Herald Sun in 2008, Campbell was twice awarded the Grant Hattam Kill Award for Investigative Journalism by the Melbourne Press Club and in 2013 won the Walkley Award for Scoop of the Year. Andrew CapelSports WriterAndrew Capel is a much award-winning sports writer for The Advertiser, focusing primarily on AFL and cricket. He has been with News Corp for more than 30 years and reports extensively Adelaide and Port Port football clubs and the South Australian cricket team. A former cricketer aged, Andrew's passion for the sport can be traced back to his childhood as he sat on his dad's shoulders at games at Glenelg Football Club games. Away from the computer, he is actively involved with the West Torrens Area Cricket Club, where his two sons play. Scott CarbinesVictorian Real Estate Digital EditorScott Carbines is News Corp's Victorian digital property editor who heads the digital outlet for the Herald Sun, Geelong Advertiser and Leader Community newspapers. He also falters in the OU, covering issues related to the music scene, drug policy, action on climate change and in many ways. Scott is also a freelance music writer for Mixmag, the world's largest magazine of electronic music and club culture and website, and has been their Australian digital content editor for five years. He's passionate about music, especially across the dance spectrum, and you're more likely to find him at a concert or festival in Melbourne or across Victoria in his spare time. Lucy Karn is a Sunday columnist. She has been a journalist for 20 years and has worked for The Sun, New York Post and The Daily Telegraph and was Europe correspondent for News Corp Australia.Renato CastelloUrban development editor CastellRenatoo covers major development and planning reform policies across Adelaide. He has been reporting for nearly 20 years and is a former chief of staff to the Sunday Mail. He cut his teeth on messenger community newspapers and has a strong understanding of the issues that matter to local communities. He has a particular interest in the tension between the development and preservation of the natural beauty of our city. Caitlan CharlesPolit reporter Caitlan Charles is a policy reporter for the Townsville Bulletin covering the local council, state and federal government in North Queensland. She previously reported on court, education, tourism and worked as a digital journalist. Having started her career at Grafton, Caitlan moved to Mackay to work for the Daily Mercury in 2019.Georgia ClarkBreaking News ReporterGeorgia Clark is the Daily Telegraph's news correspondent. She's a multimedia reporter with an interest in general news, current affairs, crime and investigative journalism. She is passionate about pursuing stories setting the agenda and brings Sydneysiders the news as it unfolds. Laeta Crawford is editor of Partnership & Journals. Taking into account more than 25 years of experience in news and features, she edits and writes attractive and creative content for readers while meeting the needs of customers. Paul KrauliSenior rugby league journalistPaul Krawley is a senior rugby league journalist for The Daily Telegraph. A former sports editor for both The Daily and the Sunday Telegraph, he has been reporting on the game since the early 1990s. Paul is respected for his strong opinion, analysis and his ability to break great stories. Brad CrouchMedic reporterBrad Crouch is a medical reporter for The Advertiser and The Sunday Mail, also covers areas such as travel, as well as writing art reports and investigations on various topics. He was a New York correspondent, federal political correspondent and won several awards, including JOURNALIST of the Year SA. Nic DarvenizaSports journalist Nick Darveniza is a sports journalist for the Gold Coast Bulletin. In 2019, he joined the sports team Bulletin from The Courier-Mail. As a rugby union bulletin and rugby league reporter Darveniza covers teams from the Gold Coast Titans and Queensland Reds to local club and school competitions. It also covers gold coast gridiron, baseball and hockey competitions. If you have a clue to the story, email him at nicholas.darveniza@news.com.auAndrew DawsonSports journalist Andreu Dawson is a sports writer for Courier Mail/Quest Newspapers focused mainly on junior, school and club sport. He began his career in 1984 and three-quarters of his career reports on sports, either for The Courier Mail or Quest Newspapers.Rebecca DiGirolamoSenior journalistRebecca DiGirolamo has covered the news in South Australia for more than 20 years, focusing on social justice issues and the remarkable ability of South Australians to use the power of humanity to drive Major awareness campaigns included women's health, child protection, poverty, disability and elder abuse, as well as asylum seekers. Stephen DrillEurope correspondentStephen Drill is Europe correspondent for the Daily Telegraph, Herald Sun, Courier Mail and Adelaide Advertiser. It covers politics, royals, crime, celebrities and sports across the continent and the Middle East. Drill won the Oclely Award and two Quill Awards. He also worked for The Wall Street Journal, and The Sun.Amanda DuckerAssociate editor Amanda Ducker Dakker is an associate editor of the Mercury newspaper in Hobart. In long form there is a writer, columnist, travel correspondent and books, she is a reliable voice with more than 30 years of experience. Jennifer Dudley-NicholsonNational Technology Editor Jennifer Dudley-Nicholson is national technology editor for News Corp. She covers everything from sophisticated smartphones, wearable technology and smart refrigerators to privacy issues, broadband infrastructure and social media regulation. Highlights from her career over 20 years at News Corp and The Courier-Mail include interviewing two members of Buffy's cast, attending one of Steve Jobs' acclaimed presentations, playing Super Mario with the man who created it, and writing about everything from flying cars to space junk lasers. Email Jennifer Dudley-NicholsonSyuged DunlevyNational Healthcare ReporterSyuzhet Dunlevy is a national health reporter for the Sunday Telegraph, Daily Telegraph, Herald Sun, Courier Mail and Adelaide Advertiser, which writes about breakthroughs in medical research, pharmaceuticals, systems health insurance and health policy. Roy EcclestoneSAWeekend EditorRoy Ecclestone is an award-winning journalist and editor with The Advertiser. He worked on Courier Post, Vic. Australian and Herald; and written for Time magazine and The Times, London. He covered two Olympics, worked in the federal press gallery for five years, and from 2000-2005 he was a correspondent for Australian Washington. Lynn EdmystoneJournalistLeanne Edmystone is a much award-winning journalist, with a keen interest in social issues that specialize in long-term features for QWeekend magazine. Lynn's career spanned more than 20 years, and includes the release of the biography Just A Mum, co-authored by LGBTQI+ equal rights campaigner Shelley Argent. INSTAGRAM: @LeanneEdmystone.journalist&author of FB: @LeanneEdmystone.journalist&authorNathan is a journalist for The Courier Mail and The Sunday Mail, and with a degree in film industry and information technology. He has worked in several newsrooms across southeast Queensland, as well as several cross-media and digital content platforms. Nathan also has a keen interest in politics, crime, technology and the creative industries. Jeff Egan is a digital news reporter covering north Brisbane. He covered crime, courts, politics and was a leading data journalist on the award-winning Ultimate Schools Hub program. Kiel is a leadership community reporter for Maroondah and Stonnington - covering general news in both parts of Melbourne. It also does casual digital features and specializes in music, entertainment and lifestyle content. Matthew Elkerton Sports EditorMatthew Elkerton is sports editor at Townsville Bulletin. He has worked as a sports reporter for more than a decade and a half in several regional cities on Australia's east coast with a focus on rugby league and grassroots public sports. A finalist in several regional sports journalism awards, he draws on his passion for all sports and lack of ability in most. Most weekends of summer, you can find him at number 11 on the batting list. Sophie EllsworthNational Personal Finance launched the Buzzy Bits column, which still runs today. Quentin retired in 2004 but has maintained close and robust relationships with many of the people he wrote about in his role as business editor. He is a former long-distance champion swimmer and avid golfer. Emily ToxwardSenior Reporter Teething on a daily newspaper in New Zealand nearly 20 years ago, Emily through the mast in Sydney before moving to the Gold Coast, where she has been living since 2006. With a passion to tell people's stories, she tends to public journalism and report on grassroots issues affecting people every day. Brianna TraversCrim reporterBrianna Travers is a police and crime reporter for the Herald Sun, often breaking the news of the police investigation. She is passionate about the stories of the victims and their families. Travers has been a reporter with the Herald Sun since 2015 and won the Quill Award in the Breaking NewsAlex TreacyCrim reporterAlex Treacy category is a reporter who came to the Courier Mail via Gayndah and Central & Central& North Burnett Times. It covers Beleigh Courthouse and Brisbane on the south side (crime, court, business, development, community, etc.). Cricket is tragic. Jim TuckerRugby, golf and Olympics reporter Jim Tucker is a rocky veteran of 40 years in the sports reporting game. He provides news and opinions with all this experience on ins and outs with the Wallabies and Queensland rugby scenes. He is still trying to sell the last few T-shirts of failed enterprise in commodities at the 1987 Rugby World Cup. He owns Greg Norman's last victory since his 1986 British Open and until then. Whether it's from Augusta National or the humble Wantima Country Club, you get low down on what's going on in golf. Brisbane Olympics 2032 ... Matt TurnerSports reporterMatt Turner is a sports reporter for The Advertiser, which covers mostly AFL and basketball. He has been with News Corp for more than a decade, starting with The Messenger, where he has been sports editor for two years. Matt shouldn't be confused with The Advertiser's Matt Turner, an award-winning photographer who also shares the same name (James). Alexandria UttingChief trial reporter Aleksandria Utting is the chief crime reporter with the Coast Gold Bulletin. A senior journalist covers crime and justice issues from across the Gold Coast. She was previously the chief litlght reporter for The Courier-Mail and covered some of the biggest criminal trials in Queensland. Alexandria also holds a law degree from queensland University of Technology and began her career as a journalist in regional NSW. She was previously recognised for her reporting on the Queensland Media Awards, the Clarions, and interviewed by some of the most infamous criminals in the state. It will look into history no matter how big or small. Chad Van EstropPolitics correspondent Chad Van Estrop has experience covering complex stories in the Victorian judiciary, political and transport sectors. His tactfulness with contacts means he has shared many of their deeply personal stories. Its versatility sees it revolve across different reporting areas. He began his career at a suburban weekly newspaper in Melbourne in 2012 and has worked for the Herald Sun, Leader and Geelong Advertiser newspapers since 2016.Mitchell Van Khomri is a reporter and producer for The Daily Telegraph. He previously worked on radio and television in Queensland before joining the Telegraph in 2019. At the time, he was working as a recent news reporter, general reporter and night chief of staff. It has widely covered the state's worst drought in living memory, black summer fires and the coronavirus pandemic. Email Mitchell Van HomrighNathan VassDigital Editor, New York BureauNathan Vass is a digital editor for the New York Bureau. A veteran journalist and communications professional, he covered NSW State politics from Macquarie Street for more than a decade. He is a former chief of staff and chief of staff at The Sunday Telegraph, and was a Sydney Olympic cos. After more than a decade of running corporate affairs for major companies in Australia, he returned to journalism in our New York office, with wide-ranging brief acceptance in sports, breaking news and our coverage of the 2020 presidential election. Joanne Vella covers crime, development, human interest and council history for the Paramatta Advertiser. A native of Western Sydney, she worked on several NewsLocal titles, including Blacktown's lawyer as its editor. Anna Allah has been fashion editor of The Advertiser for 10 years, during which time she wrote a weekly column in Saturday's SAWeekend magazine. She has followed the careers of Adelaide international supermodels Aduta Akecha, Lily Nova and Akima from day one alongside Paul Vasilief, founder of the world-famous South Australian couture house Paolo Sebastian. When Anna doesn't embrace fashion and beauty, she is a resident reporter for Adelaide Confidential. Highlights from the role include traveling to Los Angeles for a party with pop star Katy Perry and chatting with crooner Tony Bennett while in her pajamas for what was an unusually early morning phone interview. James WagstaffFokus editor and senior journalist James Wagstaff is editor of The Weekly Times' Focus and a senior journalist. A 20-year veteran of rural and regional media, he has worked for The Weekly Times for the past 15 years, serving in a number of roles including deputy editor, chief of staff and business editor. He is currently responsible for comprehensive coverage on the publication's farm and helps coordinate the Coles Farmer of the Year Awards. Four-time winner of the Rural Press Club of Victoria award. Jason WallsChief trial reporterJason Walls is the award-winning chief judicial reporter at NT News and has been on publication since 2017. His hobbies include drinking alone and conspiracy to retaliate against him. He's not a press gallery reporter for the New Zealand Herald, you think of someone else. Liz Walsh has been a journalist for almost 20 years, joining The Advertiser in 2005 after reporting stints in Port Lincoln and Canberra. After covering music, movies and entertainment as the Sunday Mail's feature editor, she joined SALife magazine as its deputy editor, than return to NewsCorp NewsCorp newsroom as an art writer. She joined the sports team in 2018, highlighting Australian rules of football and cricket, where highlights included reporting on the AFLW's premiership campaign at the Adelaide Crows in 2019 and the successful campaign of the Australian women's T20 cricket team in 2020. Bettina WarburtonTownsville EYEBettina Warburton has been a journalist for the Townsville Bulletin for more than two decades. She worked as the head of the newspaper's staff, as well as a sub-editor. Bettina also covered the rounds of judgment, police, politics, health care and education during her time on paper. She currently writes articles and edits weekend magazine, Townsville EYE. Craig Warhurst is editor of the Townsville Bulletin and has a 22-year career in newspapers. Mr Warhurst started on the ballot in February 2020 and was a former editor of the Sunshine Coast Daily, Bundaberg NewsMail and The Gympie Times. The newspapers he edited won and were finalists for numerous awards including Panpa, INMA and the News Corp Awards.Ann Wason Moore has many opinions, many stories... and without a filter. Anne wrote about the Gold Coast almost as long as she lived here - which is more decades than she cares to admit. Despite being born and raised in Dallas, Texas, she considers herself a true local - even if she still doesn't speak like one. While a dual national can never enter politics, she can vote in two countries and is willing to criticize all parties. By sticking to her bi-citizenship, she tackles topics both serious and humorous. She is a regular guest on ABC's Gold Coast and takes the opportunity to share inappropriate stories both on air and in print. Paul WestonSenyor JournalistPaul Weston is a senior journalist at The Gold Coast Bulletin covering community policy and campaigns. His reports on high-profile domestic violence on the coast were part of a series of Bulletins that led to wide-ranging reforms. Similarly, articles about police nominating crime numbers led to recognition at the Queensland Media Awards, the Clarions. His recent report into allegations of corruption around Gold Coast City Council alleged an investigation by the Crime and Corruption Commission. His weekly column aims to tell the story behind the news headlines. Ellen WhinnettInvestigations editor Ellen Whinnett is the news corp network's investigations editor. The Warley award-winning journalist is a former foreign correspondent and political editor who has been reporting for more than 30 years. It has special attention to national security, terrorism, politics and crime. Alex White State political reporterAlex White is an award-winning member of the state rounds team reporting on daily political stories as well as long-term investigative projects. Before the Victorian Parliament, she was based in Melbourne as a state security reporter and amassed a ten-year-old experience in news corp. James WigneyHit.TV WigneyHit.TV Editor Yames Viny is editor of Entertainment Elevators Hit.TV and Scene in the Herald Sun and Sunday Herald Sun and has been writing about film, music, TV and comedy for more than two decades. At the time, he was interviewed in some of the biggest names in the entertainment world - from Pink Floyd and Pink to Harrison Ford and Jennifer Lawrence - and was behind the scenes of the Marvel and James Bond films and backstage with Coldplay and U2. It is also a tragic pop culture, with a particular interest in sci-fi and very broad musical tastes (and a special soft spot for classical rock). Simon WilkinsonFood EditorSymon Wilkinson is a food editor and restaurant reviewer at The Advertiser and oversees the compilation and judging process for the publication of The Advertiser Food Guide. Living and working as a journalist in London, he followed europe's food trails from Sardinia to Scandinavia. He lives in the Adelaide suburb of the beach, where he is a keen home cook who feeds two fast-growing boys and learns to unwrap his newly built wood-fire stove. Amber WilsonCourt Reporter Amber Wilson is a trial reporter for Mercury. She has more than a decade of experience in journalism and media, working in newsrooms throughout Melbourne, Hobart, Glasgow and regional Australia. Its focus is on crime, the courts and justice. Kyle Wisniewski is a journalist with the Gold Coast Bulletin covering the general news affecting the city. It reports a range of areas from crime to business-related news. As a new member of the team, his willingness to cover events from the site was a significant feature of his work. In recent years, its coverage of local businesses and industries during the COVID-19 pandemic has been key for The Bulletin, providing a voice for Gold Coasters during crises. Madeleine Wong is a round reporter for northern beaches and the upper north shore with experience covering crime, court, health, council, development and many others. Prior to joining NewsCorp, Madeleine was shaken up in tv news production and has experience in local news journalism, which previously covered culturally diverse areas such as southwest Sydney. She was drawn to her role at NewsCorp because of her passion for storytelling and producing original news. Keith WoodsDigital EditorKeit Woods has travelled the world - from Europe to Australia and everywhere in between - but believes there is nowhere better than the Gold Coast. That's why he's passionate about fighting for this city to make sure it retains its fun, easy way of life for future generations. The dad-of-three's cat, has a house full of pets and enjoys a few beers at the weekend. He likes to walk his dog on Kos and go for drives to Hinterland. And he occasionally does a bit of work, including writing columns for the Gold Coast Bulletin.Michael WrayFederal political reporter Michael Wray embraces federal politics from Brisbane's relative comfort outside Canberra. It has for the world's leading publications including Time, London's Sunday Telegraph, The Independent, Finance Asia and The Sun, based in Hong Kong. He has reported extensively from Asia, including reports of travel to China, North Korea and Mongolia.Amy ZiniakHead, a Newcastle News journalistAmy Ziniak is chief reporter for The Newcastle News, launched a digital platform in August 2019. It reports crime, breaking news, development, health care, education and many others. She lives in Hunter with her family and enjoys the great lifestyle she offers. Will ZwarCouncil ReporterBude Zwar is a board reporter for the NT News. It brings you the latest in all the local issues and stories directly affecting you - where the newest restaurants, bars and cafes are, where to take your dog for a walk and where all the best hidden gems are. He goes to the man behind the developments and go out and about to Darwin and throughout. He also falters in recent fishing stories and likes to write good yarns about anything connected to the outdoors. Kate de BritoEditor-in-ChiefKate is a highly skilled editor who has worked as a news, features and opinion writer for more than 20 years in digital, newspapers and magazines. Her most erring claim to fame, however, was her avarice as an online advice columnist to Ask Bossy. She previously worked as mamamia's editor-in-chief and head of digital for the News Corp. editorial network, Lisa was a journalist for more than 20 years, starting her career in public newspapers. After years of reporting on politics, health and general news, Lisa edited The Southern Courier and The Mosman Daily before being appointed news editor at The Manly Daily. Fun fact: When Lisa was 15, she appeared in the popular ABC mini-series Brides of Christ. Just ask her. She likes to talk about it. Stephanie RaethelGroup Features EditorStephanie has spent 20 years reporting and editing for News Corp, Fairfax Media and Bauer Media since her start typing TV time into The Advertiser in Adelaide. She specializes in skepticism, but believes her border collie every time he tells her he hasn't been fed. Oliver MurrayDeputy EditorOliver has more than a decade of journalism experience. He started out as a sports reporter in a small NSW newspaper before moving on to News Corp community documents in Sydney as a reporter and later news.com.au. Oliver is passionate about football (world game), goes to the World Cup and also enjoys live music. Liz BurkMorning News EditorLees has an interest in politics and an obsession with social media. After tweeting to the industry, she began her career at Australian Women's Weekly magazines, going to work in newspapers and later joined news.com.au as a senior journalist. She appeared on national television and radio as a commentator, discussing news and women's issues. Kerry Warren After being news anchor his career at the Sydney Morning Herald before making 20-something move to London. She returned to Australia in 2011 as digital managing editor of The Australian Women's Weekly before joining news.com.au in 2018. Fun fact: Carrie can rap all five Ice Cube Baby poems in a minute. Matt wore a lot of digital hats news.com.au but his most rewarding was his second place in New York as news.com.au American correspondent. With more than a decade of experience, including more than eight years at News Corp, Matt is a bright, energetic news anchor who knows what makes you talk, what makes you laugh and what makes you rage. Marion LangfordSub-EditorMarion is a sub news.com.au with more than two years of journalism experience. She worked for a regional daily newspaper in Britain, where she was head of feature production before moving to News Corp. She held various roles with the company, including production editor features for the Daily and Sunday Telegraphs, deputy tablet editor for Tele and chief sub-editor for Delicious on Sunday. She loves cooking and watching tennis, but what she loves most is reading about other people making fools of themselves. Rebecca has two decades of experience as a journalist in Australia and the UK, mostly covering news, crime, court, politics and health. Rebecca has worked for News Corp since 2002 and spent two years reporting from the PRESS Gallery of the NSW Parliament before becoming copy editor at The Daily Telegraph, The Manly Daily and NewsLocal.Victoria NielsenPicture EditorVictoria has more than 12 years of experience in photo editing. She began her career working with paparazzi photos before moving into the world of magazines and online. Whether it's news or celebrity related, she likes to let the image tell the story. Her brain is full of random celebrity facts, making her a coveted member of the team in the pub trivia. Samantha MeydenNational political editorSamanta Diva covered federal politics at the Canberra Press Gallery for more than 20 years, writing for the Australian and News Corp Sunday Papers before joining the news.com.au. Her career highlights include being called Peter Dutton's Mad Witch and her first book, Party Animals, published in 2020. Accordingly, she runs a small private zoo at home involving her three children, two dogs and a cat. Sam ClenchPolitical ReporterSam writes about Australian and American politics, with the occasional snarky TV recap thrown in by an inch He first joined news.com.au as a university student, working as that guy in the office who receives mail and fixes printers before scoring a job as a reporter and going on to be editor of the morning homepage. He spends his free time eating. Victoria correspondent CrawEuropeVictoria highlights the world news and features of News UK's London office. Originally from New Zealand, she previously worked in Sydney, business, property and general news. She likes to travel any new place - especially if it includes beaches, good wine and lots of pasta. Haris ChangSenjor ReporterCharis ReporterCharis has been a reporter for more than 10 years covering politics, the environment, infrastructure and everything in between. Before becoming a journalist, she had parallels, but decided to take a chance to write and never looked back. She likes to report on interesting people, ideas and politics. She also spends too much money on travel. Candace SuttonSenior ReporterCandace Sutton is an award-winning journalist and true crime author with 30 years of experience covering international and national events. She worked as a foreign correspondent in the U.S., Southeast Asia and Europe, and now specializes in crime and the courts. Shannon MolloySenior Reporter and acting news editor Shannon is a writer and journalist with more than a decade of experience on major media covering print, digital and publishing. He began his career at Fairfax in Brisbane as an award-winning news reporter and has since covered property, business, entertainment and human interest. He is executive director of the Online News Association and contributes to a variety of charities, including as convening Claire Atkinson's annual memorial scholarship for journalism at the University of Queensland. James WeirSenior ReporterJames joined news.com.au in 2014. He likes to write about different things that either annoy or entertain you. He wrote for newspapers and worked as a radio producer and contributor for ABC and The Kyle & Jackie O Show.Benedict BrookNational Affairs ReporterBenedict is a news reporter focused on national issues. He won the Kennedy Prize for Environmental Reporting news.com.au and was nominated for several awards for his articles on the LGBTI community. Formerly an assistant editor at the Star Observer, Benedict is one of those types of tourists who came to Australia a century ago and never quite left. He worked in journalism and communications for 20 years, both in the UK and in Oz, before joining the news.com.au.Rohan SmithVictorian ReporterRohan loves breaking news and telling bizarre Australian stories that speak of our national diversity. Rohan has been writing news for printing, broadcasting and online for 10 years after starting work as a cadet sports reporter in Melbourne. He moved to Sydney five years ago to work in newspapers and joined the news.com.au in 2014. He is now based in Melbourne.Ben cut his teeth as a bubbly news anchor on the turbulent streets of rural north-west England before jettng around the world and moving around the Sydney suburbs as a community reporter. When he's not on the lookout for outrageous yarns that cause your blood to boil or the sides split, Ben can be found playing guitar or crying in a pint of beer over Liverpool's latest result. Natalie WolfeNews ReporterNatalie works as a state reporter, focusing on Queensland, Western Australia and the Northern Territory, occasionally infringing on her state of NSW when she misses their antics. She first joined news.com.au as a university student, starting out as but moved to the news in 2017. Before heading to news.com.au, Natalie worked for Wollongong's Wave FM. Ally is a news reporter for news.com.au. She graduated with a science degree in journalism from Charles Sturt University and, after news.com.au, landed a place on the team. Although she is only early in her career she is happy to have a crack in writing with almost nothing. She's also well versed in how to spot online dating scammers, so if carrying right on Tinder gets you in a place to bother she is the one to call. Gavin FernandoNews ReporterGavin worked on television and for an Australian newspaper before settling news.com.au as a digital journalist. Its coverage ranges from politics and global affairs to social commentary. An avid traveler, his reporting took him everywhere from rural China to the Moroccan desert. Say hello if you see him around - he's not as grumpy as his photo byline suggests. Sarah McPheeNews ReporterSaras is a news and court reporter in news.com.au. She cut her teeth at the Australian Associated Press in Brisbane and later Sydney, where she fell in love with writing about bad people doing bad things. There's every chance you'll see her in the back of a court chaise trying to capture an iPhone video. When she's not sitting in the cut-writing public gallery, Sarah likes to cover breaking news and emergencies, but also loves yarn for travel. Stephanie BedoSenyor ReporterStef joined news.com.au team in Sydney after moving from the Gold Coast and its warm weather. She was a journalist for more than a decade, starting her career as a runaway student reporter in high school for the Gold Coast Bulletin, where she then did her cadetship. She has won awards for her health reporting and admits to being a bit of a science nerd, especially when it comes to animal histories, which are often only she's excited about. Natalie is the youngest member of news.com.au team. During her time at Queensland University of Technology, she was a Vogue intern and worked as an editorial assistant and contributor to the digital publication for Young Women WinWin Magazine. When she's not at her desk, you can find her indulging in her penchant for social commentary and good books, and maintaining her (self-proclaimed) role as pasta champion of Australia.Phoebegot her start in the industry as a teenager by writing music and CD reviews for the local Sydney street press. She loved everything. Over the past 10 years, Phoebe has written for local and foreign websites and newspapers, and worked behind the scenes in a number of major reality shows. It is passionate about all the stories from all humans, or those concerning animals, and the forces of nature. Richard BlackburnNational Automotive EditorRichard has been a journalist for more than 25 years. He began his career with News Corp in the 80s, where he worked on all his titles before with an Australian where he was appointed aviation editor. He is H News to join Qantas' PR team before moving on to similar roles with Ford and Toyota. He eventually returned to journalism after 12 years on the dark side as editor of The Rise of DriveLife Fairfax and drive.com.au. He returned News - fatter, balm and hopefully wiser - in 2014 as national automotive editor. Dom TripoloneMotoring WriterDom began his journalistic career 10 years ago at The Sydney Morning Herald, working in the Drive section before moving to News Corp two years ago to cover motor-related stories on all of its sites, including news.com.au. Dom is interested in bizarre automotive stories and electric cars. So if you see a ruined supercar or Elon Musk's outrageous tweet, let him know. Vanessa BrownTravel editor After graduating with a degree in media and broadcast, Vanessa landed a job with the Today show as a producer. She spent five years with the breakfast program, which has seen her work across the country and around the world on various entertainment, news and lifestyle stories. Vanessa has a great interest in food, fitness, beauty, health and home. Before leading the tourism team, she was a lifestyle reporter for news.com.au.Lauren McMahonTravel ReporterLauren worked on a suburban Sydney newspaper circuit before spending two years as a senior news reporter with mX newspaper, highlighting the upliftingness to the ridiculous as well as all the big, breaking news from across Australia and around the world. She squandered food reviews, tourist parts and caught up with the impressive A-list interview list. Nick BondEntertainment editor Nick has worked as a journalist for more than a decade, starting as a long-term entertainment editor for Australia's most respected LGBT publication, the Star Observer. He worked in print, television and radio, including stint as producer for Channel 7's Sunday Night current affairs programme, and a year in London as web editor for Attitude Magazine.Andrew BucklowEntertainment ReporterAndrew was a breakfast radio producer for seven years before deciding he was much better suited to a job that didn't require him to be in bed until 7.30pm. He likes to track celebrities for a quick chat, and has spoken to Lady Gaga, Chris Rock, Usher and Merlin from Big Brother. (The latter was much easier to track down.) Bronte CoyEntertainment ReporterBronte has been a journalist for six years, covering news and entertainment for major media outlets across the country, including shows Nova, Triple M, 2DayFM and Channel Nine's Today, before joining news.com.au. When Bronte isn't at work keeping up with the Kardashians, she's at home keeping up with the Kardashians. She also performed at the opening ceremony of the 2000 Sydney Olympics - but that's history for another time. Bella FowlerEntertainment ReporterBella's journalism career began as a teenager in Adelaide, where she worked in public radio and music reviews for free concert tickets. After graduating from un, she moved into real estate reporting for The Advertiser and The Sunday Mail. Mail. took two years in London to fit around Europe, like many 20-somethings in front of her. Back in Australia, her reality-TV obsession grew stronger while writing for Mamamia. Now she can't resist the IAAF's guilty struggle, the brutal break-up of The Bachelor or delve deeply into the life of a celebrity we've all forgotten about. Rebekah ScanlanLifestyle EditorRebekah has a passion for the incredible real stories of everyday Australians, having spent decades writing and editing for magazines of human interest. When she's not in the office, Ben tends to try her hardest to raise heavy things at Crossfit or dream of her next trip to Burning Man. Her most recent journalistic moment was an interview with Chris Hemsworth and yes, she can attest that he looks even better in real life. Hannah Painelifestyle ReporterHannah got its start in writing journalism for The Armidale Express and The Daily Advertiser newspapers, covering everything from cattle sales to psychic pigs. After her strain in regional journalism, Hannah returned to Sydney and followed her passion for reality TV by writing entertainment stories for Daily Mail Australia. Although obsessed with all things married at first sight and The Bachelor, she is still within sight of her next big yarn involving an farm animal with ESP. Shireen KhalilLifestyle ReporterShireen began her career as an automotive writer for an online magazine before joining the News Corp community newspaper covering local news and politics. During this time, she huddled on Sky News Australia as a News Local correspondent. She then (usually) moved to London (and Germany), chasing this euro sun, working as a journo and freelance travel writer before returning home as a lifestyle reporter news.com.au. Alexis CareyFinance editorAlexis has been a reporter for eight years, covering business, women's interests, politics, careers and many others. She previously worked for the Mamamia women's network and several news corp's NewsLocal newspapers. She is passionate about people's accounts and is a serious travel junkie after spending 20 months travelling the world before joining the news.com.au team in 2017. James HallFinance ReporterJames Hall joined the news.com.au finance team from the Australian Associated Press, where he covered a wide range of tables including public policy in South Australia and the stock market from Sydney. Before that, he was a news reporter at The Canberra Times.Jack GramenzTechnology ReporterJack is a self-intelligence millennial who is addicted to smartphones and introduces Twitter messages directly into his veins. He thinks exclusively in memes and has never been crazy online. He attended Queensland University of Technology before moving to Sydney. After joining news.com.au he remains a Brisbane Broncos supporter, but now they are just his news Corp's favourite facility until they could make up the top four again. Originally from Adelaide, Jai is a journalist with more than a decade of experience in He has covered a range of international events, including the Olympics, and is an enthusiastic follower of the AFL, NFL, NBA, UFC, surfing and boxing. James MattheySports ReporterJames joined the news.com.au team as a sports reporter still studying, a job that suited him perfectly as he always preferred to watch sports to sit in lecture theatres. He has a passion for cricket, tennis, rugby league, AFL and football, and always strives to learn more about the ever-changing world of journalism. James stands out as the only member of the sports table incapable of growing a beard (even if he never admits to it). Tyson OttoSports Reporter After completing his sports journalism degree at Charles Sturt University in Bathurst, Tyson joined The Daily Telegraph as a sports reporter with a focus on the NRL and AFL before moving on to become sports editor at mX Newspaper in Sydney. He covered everything from tiger Woods chipping to chopping wood. Alex BlairSports ReporterBig fans of cricket, rugby and tennis, Alex likes to tell the story behind the stories and find quietest yarns possible. When you can't find him in the office, he'll be at another concert with his band or recording the next No 1 hit. James McCarnSports reporter After working at the gold mine for six years James decided to shift his career. After completing his studies, he moved to Sydney and joined the team at ESPN Australia before joining news.com.au in 2017. The AFL was rooted early after growing up in Country Victoria, but it's also dependent on the entire NBA and will never get a dream without watching the day's top plays. Nic SavageSports ReporterNic is a passionate sports reporter and cricket addict. He completed a Bachelor of Media at the University of New South Wales in 2018, and has since worked as a digital content creator at Fox Sports before joining the team at news.com.au. When you're not watching cricket, you can find Nic hunting for a cheap vinyl record. Adriana ZappavignaReporterAdrianna began her career in magazines, writing for OK! and NW, while diligently linking every reality show on air. Since finding a home digitally in news.com.au, she has enjoyed a double coffee run and a much wider volume, informing her of everything from breaking news to finance and lifestyle. All her downtime is spent reading articles about new skincare procedures and scrolling down Instagram rabbit holes. Adriana ZappavignaAlex's email Turner-CohenReporterAlex loves writing and she hates feeling out of the loop, so it seemed natural that she goes into journalism. Having completed 10 internships, she is thrilled to finally have a job in the industry. Alex received an email for the news.com.au editor on one piece of paper and withdrew a message pleading for an internship. Boy she's glad she did it. Eleni PanerasHead of Social Strategy and Audience EngagementEleni is a highly qualified specialist in networks with more than eight years of experience in the media industry. Starting A TV career on the Nine Network, she went on to work on radio before joining the news.com.au. As head of social strategy and audience engagement, she is constantly developing ways to create and enhance interaction across different social platforms. She's also a Harry Potter aficionado - and may/may not bring you back into a corner to discuss various theories. Isabelle GogolSocial Media producerAlso is known as Issey G, Isabelle is a social media editor with news.com.au. Three years as a social media producer on the Nine Network Australia for The Today Show saw Isabelle develop an interest in news and current events. It is always about looking for stories that cause social comments and conversations. When you're not trawling online for the latest social media crazes, you'll find it on the dance floor. Cassandra KoppSocial Media producer Cassandra gets to combine her love of journalism and obsession with social media in news.com.au. She likes to scan the innermost corners of the social world to find stories with the potential to go viral and spark social engagement. Formally assistant social media editor at Daily Mail Australia, Cassandra is well versed in knowing what stories will trend on social media. John GuangzonVideo ProducerJohn is a video producer for news.com.au. He has produced, filmed and edited digital video content for more than eight years, spending most of his career working on some of Australia's biggest real and entertainment TELEVISION programmes, including The X Factor, Family Feud and Grand Designs. He spends most of his time watching videos online, looking at memes and being a shameless Instagram dad. Ria MatthewsCommys EditorFrising what makes cracks read, Ria prides herself on breaking the best yarn. Having started her career in UK newspapers, she moved to Australia in 2014, where she worked in the strange and amazing world of real magicians. At the end of 2019, she landed her dream role at News Corp, working news.com.au and Kidspot. In her spare time, she runs while listening to genuine podcasts about crimes. Isiah McKimmieRelationship AdviceIsiah McKimmie is one of the most skilled and sought after experts in relationships and intimacy in Australia - she is also the brains behind the news.com.au Relationship Rehab column. He holds a master's degree in relational psychotherapy, a master's degree in medicine (sexual counseling/ psychosexual therapy), a postgraduate diploma in sexology and a certificate from the prestigious Institute for Advanced Research on Human Sexuality. Compassionate, understanding and not judgmental, she built her reputation on getting results. Nadia Bokodi is a sex-positive journalist and media commenter with a passion for empowering women in their sex lives and mental health. Her refreshingly honest, comedic editorial style has seen her work published in including The Washington Post, HuffPost and Thought Catalog. She is also a resident of sexpert at 96.1, and Australian YouTube personality. Dedicated to delivering unfiltered stories about her own experiences as a woman, she was heralded by internet queen TMI and one of the most relatable voices in the media today. Nadia's weaknesses include margaritas and men with glasses, though not always in that order. Jana HockingDating AdviceJana is a collector of Kinda/sorta boyfriends and dating stories. She has worked in both television and radio for the past 12 years, including as a dating producer for The Bachelor. As a dating columnist for news.com.au can often be seen in a dark wine bar with a potential suitor. She hosts the Dating Podcast Jana with a J and is also a regular commentator on Studio 10 and Triple M's late night show Danny Lakey Live." Alison and Gillian BarrettSisters at LawAlison and Gillian Barrett are directors at Maurice Blackburn Lawyers and Real Sisters. Hailing from Queensland, they are highly qualified lawyers and passionate campaigners of social justice. Older sister Alison is a mother and also heads a major legal practice, while younger sister Gillian also leads the legal team. The email is by Alison and Gillian BarrettMelis - a journalist and media commentator who is obsessed with every tentacles of popular culture. As entertainment and style editor at large on news.com.au role is the perfect combination of everything she loves about sharing news. Melissa is a regular commentator on Sunrise, The Morning Show and The Daily Edition, as well as a radio commentator on all things pop culture and style. Joe HildebrandContributorJo has been a journalist for more than 20 years. He is also a TV presenter and radio host. Prior to joining news.com.au, he was an opinion editor at The Daily Telegraph and a columnist for The Daily Telegraph and the Herald Sun. Joe started in editing journalism at Melbourne's Farrago University magazine and then the Australian Associated Press, as well as various other publications, TV and radio shows. He was the host of the critically acclaimed ABC series Dumb, Drunk and Racist and Shitsville Express and was co-host of Studio 10. Joe grew up in Melbourne, and now lives in Sydney with his wife and young family. He despises referring to himself in the third person. After developing a digital heart (rather than a pacemaker of sorts) with inky veins, Jamie just wants an excuse to learn something new. But he is fully aware of his 32 years of experience in the news industry has given him enough knowledge to be dangerous. International relations. History. Defense. Science. Space. Technology. He has a fascination for them all - especially when it comes to social fallout. Translating rigid concepts into general terms is his craft. His passion is to explore the big picture embracing world events. Jason MurphyEconomics WriterJason is an economist first. He began his career at the Australian Treasury and later worked as a budget adviser to the tiny island nation of Nauru. His rod to began when his blog led to a job offer in the Australian Financial Review. He is a freelance contributor to news.com.au and author of the book Incentivology.Daniela ElserRoyal WriterDaniela Elser - an experienced journalist and editor who has worked in television, magazines and digitals during his 15-year career. After starting a photocopied career at the ABC newsroom, she later conducted a lengthy stint as director marie claire's function before helping launch whim.com.au. A lifetime of fascination with the royal family can be accused of sustainable children's diet magazines Tatler and Hello. She was the only nine-year-old in her class who had previously spent her break reading books about Princess Margaret. Nothing has changed since then. Then.

envison geometry textbook answers , synonyms for short notice , normal_5f9485e56e400.pdf , normal_5fa54338abeda.pdf , convert pdf to image file , normal_5fab23b415477.pdf , nsclc icd 10 , mariners terrace club , normal_5fa09f5581083.pdf , denon multi zone receiver manual , 1106203.pdf , normal_5fb3e9e7799f8.pdf ,